TRANSCRIPT:

Sally: Excuse me. Where's the nearest lottery ticket kiosk, please?

Lady: I'm sorry. I don't know, ask that police officer over by the post office.

Sally: Ok...Thank you very much.

Sally: Excuse me, is there a lottery ticket kiosk ner here, please?

Officer: Yes, madam...Do you know the city centre?

Sally: I'm afraid I'm not from here. I'm only here for the day.

Officer: Don't worry. It's easy. Go to the end of this street, turn left and then take the...erm...fourth street on the right. You'll see it straight away. It's to the left of the bank, opposite the cash point machine.

Sally: Thank you very much.

Officer: No problem! Have a good day!

Sally: Good morning.

Assist. : Good morning. How can I help you?

Sally: I'd like two tickets for next week's draw, please.

Assist. Same number or different?

Sally: Same, please

Assist. Here you are.

Sally: Is that the only one left?

Assist. Yes, madam

Sally: I'll take it too. It can be a present for my dad. How much is it?

Assist: Thirty euros.

Sally: Here you are. Thank you very much. Bye!

Assist. Bye!
